And Is It True?

TRUTH, GOD AND NO-MAN'S LAND

Richard Clarke

This is a book about faith, and about the need to search for faith with integrity – an integrity which requires a ruthless honesty and seeks to leave no place for compartmentalising the self.

In this search, Bishop Clarke suggests that it is essential for believers to take the risk of standing in a space of vulnerability and insecurity, to pay heed to all those who voice a passion and a restlessness for truth.

'It is quite some time since I have enjoyed a book as stimulating, challenging and intellectually satisfying as this.' Seán Fagan

'Man the searcher will be confronted here with the mystery of God as he lives in the midst of unbelief.' Donal Flanagan

'I hope this book is widely read and its wisdom pondered.' Patrick Hannon
